

Possible Areas for New COC Maps

Question #33: Where would you like to see new maps made?

- Millersylvania SP
- Eastern Washington or anywhere that is a real forest. The parks are boring.
- The maps used are perfect. No need to change them.
- It's all about Weyerhaeuser (Federal Way). That would be awesome!!! North Seatac Park (Des Moines) might be good; but they are putting a correctional facility in the park and that might not be a good idea. Flaming Geyser Park (Enumclaw?) might be a sweet place to have one. Out of these 3, Weyerhaeuser & Flaming Geyser definitely need maps bad. That would be so fun!
- CWU campus
- "Anywhere we don't have maps ...
- BSA camps (Brinkley north of Monroe, other camps in the region)
- Port Townsend/Sequim/Port Angeles
- Kitsap Peninsula
- Snohomish and Skagit counties
- Yakima Valley"
- Middle Fork Snoqualmie River area
- "Henry's Ridge (Black Diamond)
- Lake Sawyer (Black Diamond)
- Tokul (Fall City)
- Tolt McDonald (Carnation)
- Grand Ridge Park (Issaquah)"
- East of the mountains.
- Cougar and Tiger mountains?
- Paradise Park (Woodinville), Soaring Eagle (Sammamish), Cherry Valley Falls Area (DNR, Duvall), Tolt McDonald (Upper Plateau), Tiger Mountain, Taylor Mountain Forest
- "Seattle Center (sprint venue)
- Bellevue City Park & surrounding public land (sprint venue)
- Other land near Cle Elum?"
- Look for new areas in Puget Sound region within 60-75 minutes of Seattle.
- Camp River Ranch, Carnation
- Ft. Lewis.
- near Bellingham/ Mt Baker area, eastern side of the mts for better terrain
- It's the old problem here of finding runnable terrain close to the Seattle urban area. Cle Elum ridge is almost ideal; I have not been on some of the newer maps on the East Side.
- I haven't participated in orienteering at many of the listed locations, but I am familiar with many of these places. Look forward to orienteering at these sites. Think Ft. Ebey map is a great addition. Is there a map for Magnolia/Discovery Park? Don't see that listed above.

- Mostly would like to see existing great maps (Cle Elum / Teanaway / Salmon la Sac) used more often. Even west side maps like Point Defiance, Ft. Steilacoom, N. Seatac could possibly be used 2x per year.
- Lord Hill
- The permanent courses off the web that I tried were kind of short and in small parks. It would be great with longer courses in bigger parks.
- Wherever there is runnable forest. Mazama has some great areas.
- Bainbridge Island, Olympic NP, and more Ski Orienteering!!!!
- Quincy Lake area near George, WA. Deception Pass SP & South Whidbey Community Park on Whidbey Island. Fort Worden SP in Port Townsend. Millersylvania SP near Chehalis (actually a map exists but it's unknown who owns it). Soaring Eagle Park in Sammamish.
- anywhere really. more variety in meet locations would be great.
- Anywhere we can go 'off trail'
- South King County
- More forested areas!
- im not too familiar with this aspect of things, but i am open to any additions we can afford.
- I live in Kitsap County and would be interested in mapping projects on Bainbridge and in North Kitsap County as well as Jefferson County (Port Townsend).
- "Most good orienteering parks are mapped -- can't think of any that would be good venues. Good job!
- The ultimate WIOL season with my 7 favorite venues would be Magnuson, North SeTac, UW, Bridles, Green River, Ft. Steilacoom, and Shoreview."
- "larger areas (with either open forest or a decent trail network or both ) that we could use several times a year for free
- other cross country ski areas that we might use for free"
- More difficult terrain within 50 miles of Seattle.
- Washington Park - Anacortes, Anacortes city forest, Lake Padden - Bellingham
- Don't know area well enough
- "Teanum Creek (where Casacade's first Rogaine was held)
- Ginko Petrified Forest State Park"
- Camp Waskowitz and Boxley Creek Site (adjacent King County land across powerline)
